

ROCHAMBEAU

Rooted in Chicagoland, Rochambeau delivers an acoustic sound that merges bluegrass tradition with genre-crossing ingenuity. Their performances feature inventive rhythms, fresh takes on classics, and original songs that leave audiences wanting more. With Rochambeau, music always wins.

MEET THE BAND

Aaron Krings provides the foundation of Rochambeau's sound on bass. His strong grasp of music theory and rhythmic precision bring structure and depth to the band's performances, elevating their sound across genres. With his harmonica in hand, Denny Nicholson shapes the sound of Rochambeau. His expressive playing and unique tone delivers heartfelt melodies that resonate throughout the band's music. Each melody he weaves adds depth and vibrancy, creating a dynamic layer that sets the band apart. Jacob Nelson's easygoing nature contrasts with the electrifying energy he channels through his mandolin. His performances are a testament to his technical virtuosity and seamless creativity, blending intricate melodies with effortless finesse. Tracy Okamoto is the soul of the band's sound. His velvety smooth voice captivates audiences, while his precise and skillful guitar work adds depth to every performance. Tracy's unwavering dedication and steady presence drive the band's artistry forward. Goldin Winker's banjo playing brings an enchanting layer to Rochambeau's music, weaving together precise timing, thoughtful counterpoint, and captivating melodies that define the band's sound.

Rochambeau draws from a wealth of experience that spans from sharing stages with Bill Monroe to touring with the Million Dollar Quartet and beyond.
